AMONG MAGAZINES

THERE A BABY FAME, AMONG THE WELL-TO-DO.

That the better classes are averse to children is my conclusion, from actual experience in apartment hunting, writes Lydia K. Commander in the November Delinquent.

This search revealed to me there was a famine of babies in the well-to-do neighborhoods of New York. In twenty-two apartment houses that I had visited, there were four hundred and eighty-five families; yet the children numbered just fifty-four—one child to every nine families. In twenty-two houses in one little section of our city, I had found four hundred and thirty-one of America's childless homes. It was not hard to believe that the whole great country held two million more.

A short time ago an investigation of a part of Fifth Avenue, New York City, showed one stretch of fifteen blocks where just fifteen children lived—one child to a block, in the richest section of the richest city in the country. On another affluent avenue, forty out of forty-five homes were childless; and the remaining five had only ten children among them.

"Only married people, without children need apply," is the rule of not a few New York's apartment hotels. Towering houses and hotels, so restricted, are multiplying rapidly; and almost before the plaster is dry, or the elevators are running they are filled. And still the childless couples come.

"Have you any children or dogs?" Such is the brutal question that too often meets the home seeker who ventures into the down-town region of New York, unless her quest is limited to the tenements of poverty on the far east or west fringes of the city.

PRESENCE OF MIND—AND BODY.

An official who has been long in the service of the government at Washington, tells a good story of the time when Hamilton Fish was Secretary of State.

Mr. and Mrs. Fish had, according to this official, a grand air, an old-fashioned courtesy, that introduced a new note into the Washington society of that time. It has been said that Mrs. Fish sometimes carried her idea of courtesy so far that it was Quixotic.

One of her rules, for instance, was to return every call she received. Her husband was continually holding public receptions, and to these, out of courtesy, many women would come who had no desire that Mrs. Fish should call upon them—who were in no position to receive her properly if she did call.

One such woman attended a Fish reception, left her card, and a little later was duly honored by a call from Mrs. Fish.

The Fish equipage, all aglitter in the wintry sunshine, dashed down the narrow street, and halted before the woman's shabby little house with a musical jingle of silver chains. The footman leaped from the box and opened the carriage door and Mrs. Fish descended.

The poor woman of the house was in a dreadful predicament. She was, alas, kneeling on the sidewalk beside a bucket of hot water. Her sleeves were rolled back. She had a scrubbing brush in one hand and a cake of soap in the other. She was scrubbing the front steps.

Bending graciously over her, Mrs. Fish asked politely:

"Is Mrs. Henry Robinson at home?" And Mrs. Henry Robinson replied: "No, mum, she ain't," and went on scrubbing.—October Lippincott's.

JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS ON PUNISHING BAD NEGROES.

When we find a good negro, we must encourage him to stay good and to grow better. We are doing too little of that. The old adage, "Give a dog a bad name and you have made a bad dog," is a good one. Indiscriminate cursing of the whole negro race, good and bad alike included, is an exemplification of the adage. I have frequently thought: how hard it was for a good negro, especially during campaign times, to stay good or grow better when he could not come within sound of a white speaker's voice without hearing his whole race discriminately reviled without mention of him as an exception, even in the neighborhood where he was known to be one. Whatever else is, or is not, a solution of this vexed problem, this habit is not. Justice goes hand in hand with power or else power becomes tyranny. To every white man I would say in the words of Shakespeare: "It is excellent to have a giant's strength, but it is tyrannous to use it like a giant"—irrationally. We must and we will maintain the supremacy of the white man's law, even though sometimes the latter and forms of that law are unfortunately violated in order to maintain the supremacy of its spirit. We will maintain in perpetuity the integrity of the race and of its civilization. To doubt that we can do that, when the governors, sheriffs, judges and law-makers are of our race and elected by us is to doubt our own capacity for self-government.

THE OLD SPANISH TREASURE SHIPS WERE RICH PREY FOR THE BUCANERS OF ALL NATIONS.

The Dutch first and then the French played such havoc at the Azores with the returning plate ships that from 1588 a strong escort known as the Indian Guard met both the West and East Indian ships at those island sand conveyed them to Spain; the French then improved upon the Dutchman's method by sending a fleet to the New World in 1593, which sacked Cartagena and several other places on the Spanish Main, though all that was done by both French and Dutch was hardly more than sporadic; and until the English mariner marked the plate fleet for his prey the Spaniards hardly noticed his losses at the hands of others; but from the day Sir Francis Drake sailed into the Caribbean the galleon's security vanished, and her wake across the seas was fouled with drifting spars, shattered hulks and blazing wreckage. After a bold attempt upon Nombre de Dios, which he called "The Treasure of the World" Drake withdrew to a secluded spot and entered upon a system of predatory warfare that drove the Spaniards to distraction. How many galleons fell victims to his daring there is no means of knowing; the San Felipe and the Cacajuego, the Glory of the South Seas, are but two of many charged up against him by the Spaniards, who lost nearly $2,000,000 in these captures alone; and how thoroughly he swept the seas we can only judge by the terror and panic the mere mention of the name of El Drague inspired Drake next sailed through the Straits of Magellan and burned and plundered his way up the west coast of South America, and in the frenzy aroused by his attack Spain put forth great efforts to fortify the straits, but from fraud and mismanagement the attempt failed. The reckless daredevil courage of the British sailor of this period has never been surpassed. Captain Whiddon's attack upon a galleon fleet of twenty-four sail and the immortal fight of the little Revenge when, alone and unsupported, she accounted for seventeen out of fleet of fifty-three heavy galleons before the waves closed over her deck, have been seldom paralleled and never surpassed.—From "The Spanish Galleon and Pieces of Eight," by John C. Fitzpatrick, in the November Scribner.

INDICTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.

Two Promoters of a Mining Company are Accused of Fraud.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Eugene Davis and Edward C. Bryan, vice president and treasurer respectively of the Capuzaya Mining Co., were indicted Tuesday by the grand jury for false pretenses, embezzlement and conspiracy. United States Attorney Baker at once filed a bill to annul the charter of the company and for a receiver to dissolve its affairs. An immediate hearing was had and Justice Gould appointed Attorney John F. Laskey receiver under bond of $10,000. It is stated in the bill that Davis and Bryan have sold the stock of the mining company throughout the United States and in foreign countries, for which they have received more than $1,000,000, and have also negotiated a loan of $100,000 for the company, but that none of the money from the sale of the stock or the loan reached the treasury of the company.

Used Plow on Shipboard.

A common, everyday farm plow was used in unloading the cargo of the Ammon at San Francisco. The entire hold was filled with 1,500 tons of niter, which had frozen into one solid mass and very hard. Explosives could not be used, and picks and shovels were too slow. As a joke a bystander suggested they better use a plow. The captain, however, decided to try the plan, and bought a good-sized plow, and by means of a block and tackle and steam which pulled it back and forth the length of the hold. The plow loosened the niter as fast as a big gang could shovel it into the steel buckets. This is probably the only instance on record where a ship's cargo was discharged in this way.—Popular Mechanics.

Butcher's Inference.

One day Emperor Francis Joseph was entering a village in his domain on horseback and was met on the outskirts by a butcher who had gone out in hope of catching an early glimpse of the Austrian kaiser. The emperor asked the butcher the way to an inn, and after directions had been given the butcher in turn inquired: "Have you seen the kaiser?" "Very recently," answered Francis Joseph. "Are you sure? Do you know him certainly?" asked the eager butcher. "Well, I ought to," replied the monarch, puffing out his chest. "I have shaved him often enough." "Ah, and you are the court barber," said the abashed butcher in awe-struck tones, as he doffed his cap and backed to the roadside.

Woman's Home Work in England.

The select committee of the British house of commons, in taking testimony recently in regard to the control and regulation of the conditions under which home work is carried on, heard the evidence of the president of the Women's Trade Union league. She said that the difficulty in organizing home workers was due to the fact that they were too poor to help themselves. This witness mentioned the case of a woman known to her who could earn only 75 cents a week by shirt making. She mentioned the case of another shirtmaker who received only 31 cents a dozen for making shirts. The witness produced blue cotton shirts which were made for 13 cents a dozen. She said that without charitable subsidies or poor law relief the persons who accepted these low wages could not exist.—Harper's Weekly.

A Beggar Woman's Trick.

A woman at Beaver Falls, Pa., it has just been discovered, has been going about regularly begging leaves of bread from residents on one side of a street, pleading that she had a sick husband and starving children at home. Then she packed the leaves nicely in a basket and passed along the other side and sold them at fancy prices, saying she was obliged to bake to support a large family.

BULLFIGHTS GROW IN FAVOR.

Brutal Sport is Reported Rapidly Spreading in Southern France.

Paris.—The craze for bullfights is rapidly spreading in the south of France. At Bordeaux, Nimes and Bayonne a fight takes place nearly every Sunday. Night bulls are generally killed at each meeting at Bayonne.

Near Biarritz society assembled in great numbers to attend a meeting where a Spanish amateur bullfighter, Leopold de la Maza, killed a bull. He killed recently three bulls in Spain, in the presence of the royal family. He is a wealthy sportsman.

The task was a hard one, as no torero helped him, but only another amateur. He performed as skillfully as a professional and killed a bull at the second sword stroke. He was warmly applauded by fashionable spectators.
